Woman And the Sea

Through the collection of historical material, cultural, artistic and informational material about sea activities that, over time affected the female world, we want to build an intercultural, inter-religious and inter-linguistic dialogue process, respecting the wealth of diversity and learning to enhance it.

The project aims to contribute to the dissemination and knowledge of the traditions, crafts, flavors and the role that the woman in such activity had in the past and which has in the present, identifying a new socio-cultural and economic developments role of women in marine activities.

We will speak about equal opportunity and future job prospects. We will treat the woman-body-sea relationship in scenic representation

We will involve elderly over 40 and they will transmit their experiences to young people (17/25) learning new communication technologies.

We will give to migrant workers and disabled the opportunity to integrate.

The project aims to create a "Feel Rouge" among people who feel the sea as a common heritage, without territorial, cultural and social boundaries. We also hope to give a contribution to knowledge to learn by learning
